An Unpublished Letter from General Lec. A Galveston letter in . the Chicago Times

John Twohig lives like an Irish prince and looks like one—with his venerable white hair and his courtly manners. Around his table bave sat the most famous men o this and the last generation-soldiers and statesmen, orators and poets. He has known the victor of San Jacinto and the hero of Buena Vista. Lee and Longstreet, Magruder and Thomas, Joseph E. Johnston and fighting Phil. Kearney—the paladins of the North and of the South have shared his hospitality and have honored his character. He has bundles of letters from those celebrated men, and among them the valedictory of Robert E. Lee when that immortal soldier, then colonel of the Second cavalry, bade farewell to San Antonio a few days after "the Lone Star State" voted herself out of the constellation of the Union. The document has never been published, and, coming from the foremost American general of any age, it will prove, no doubt, interesting to your readers, especially as it contains a prediction, which I have italicized, as to the ultimate fate of the ill-starred rebellion. Mr. Twohig has kindly permitted me to furnish it to the Times, as follows: furnish it to the Times, as follows:

At Mrs. Sutherland's. Sutherland's
Springs. Texas, February 19, 1861.—My Dear Mr. Twohig: I stopped at your door this morning to bid you farewell, but felt unwilling to renew the pain I felt last evening. I will therefore at this distance say adieu to you. Mrs. Twohig and Miss Kate, and wish you all every happlness and prosperity. I desired also to thank you for your kindness in takings charge of my animals, and ask you to sell the horse at once, for I fear he will give you trouble, unless you think he may be of service to you. Of the rest take what you wish, and dispose of what you may not require when convenient. Give the good mother of the orthans a "sheep horse," (the mother so pronounced the word cheap, being a foreigner.) pay all charges, and if there is any balance remit to me at Washington city. I do not think I made any definite request of Mr. Vance to send some furniture I left at his store to the auctioneer for sale. Will you remedy my neglect when you see him? remedy my neglect when you see him?
And now, having closed my business, I will say how sad I felt to-day, under the circumstances, at leaving San Antonio, especially as I am unable to see a single good that will result from the step taken by the State; but as it has been permitted by a kind Providence I hope it will eventuate in her ultimate benefit.

altimate benefit.

Again farewell. Remember me to Mayor Larkin.

Very truly yours,

R. E. LEE. The body of the letter is written in a plain, almost boyish, hand-certainly not "a character hand," in the sense of indicating the genius of the writer. It was more like the slovenly scrawl of Lord Byron than the illegible "fist" of Napoleon Bonaparte. "The Father of his Country" would have been ashamed of the degeneracy of Lee's chirography, but the signature is bold, dashing, dogged, reckless, and rushing, as the charge of Pickett's division on the Union lines at Gettysburg.

Mr. Twohig speaks with great affection had a gloomy presentiment from the very moment secession was talked of. No man the first shot. Following them up he disregretted it more, and no general ever drew they who felt his steel on the James and the flook beyond the ducks, out in the water. Chickahominy and the Rappahannock and the Rapidan have forgiven the great but misguided warrior.

WHAT DR. HOGE SAW IN PRAGUE .- The peculiar architecture of the domes and towers of Prague give it a decidedly oriental aspect, and the impress of antiquity on its public buildings make it as unlike an American city as any other in Europe. There I saw a Jewish synagogue, by the side of which is a cemetery whose level was once lower than the basement of the building, but now as high as the roof, because it has been filled with dead bodies, tier upon tier, through successive generations, until they have made a hill commanding the synagogue. When a new tier became necessary, the stones from the former one were removed, and planted on the higher, so that now the cemetery is crowded with gravestones as thick as they can stand, some of them dating as far back as the twelfth century. The Bohemian National Museum is filled with antiquities, many of them deeply interesting to those who care for the struggles of the men of the olden time who coutended for truth and right. Chief among these is the autograph challenge of John Huss, once fastened to a gate of the University of Prague, inviting all comers to a con-troversy with him on the doctrines of the Reformed faith .- Letter in Central Presby-

This sack had been used to hold chickens, at least it contained a quantity of feathers. and when one of the bucks took it from her head at the depôt she was one of the most singular-looking children of the forest that has visited the city in many a day .-Sacramento Record.

More than twenty-five years ago, three young Cincinnatians, who were adventurous and comparatively unoccupied, resolved to climb the very lefty and imposing steeple of a large Presbyterian church. Then they came down in safety. These three were Mr. R. B. Of spirit meek and noble heart, She was by friends caressed; She chose in youth the better part, And in her choice was blessed. We know a loving father's hand Unwrapped affection's tie. To link it with the angel's band,

Where loved ones never die.

The rugged path of later years Her feet will never treau: Pain, strife, anxiety, and fears, She will no longer dread.

Her home is with the snirit throng Which dwells before the throne; Her voice now swells a sweeter song Than earth has ever known. She'll watch at pearly portal bright

Thanks for the triumphs of the cross, its praise be freely given: For we will mourn dear Lillie's loss, And meet with her in Heaven. [This can hardly be called poetry, yet it is a remarkable production to have been written by a little child-still more remarkable as the work of two children.]

My Sweetheart.

Do you know my sweetheart, sir? She has fled and gone away. I've lost my love: pray tell to me Have you seen her pass to-day?

Dewy bluebells are her eyes: Golden corn her waving hair; Her cheeks are of the sweet blush-roses; Have you seen this maiden fair?

White lilies are her neck, sir; And her breath the eglantine; Her rosy lips the red carnations; Such is she, this maiden mine.

The light wind is her laughter: The murmuring brooks her seng: Her tears, so full of tender pity, In the clouds are borne along. The sunbeams are her smiles

The leaves her footsteps light: To kiss each coy flower into life Is my true love's delight. I will tell you who she is, And how all things become her.

I will tell you wno she is,
And how all things become her.
Bend down, that I may whisper:
My sweetheart's name is—"Summer."

A Tough Duck Story.

[From the Winona (Mian.) Republican.]

The jovial and venerable hunter, Mr.
Sam. Alling, of Homer, was in town to-day with a fine lot of ducks, and was congratulating himself on making the best and most yeither with the short ever made on the Mississippi bottoms, bringing down forty-two birds—namely, forty-one teal-duck and a mynd-hon—at a double shot. When he first birds-namely, forty-one teal-duck and a of Lee, and says that he appears to have mud-hen-at a double shot. State rights and the passionate ardor of Virginia, with "Sic semper as her proud refrain," made him forget his grander and wider allegiance and commit himself to the desperate fortune of the seceding States.

Well, "his star has set in night," and "his sword is sheathed in his shroud." The survivors of his splendid Army of Northern Virginia have wept above his grave, and they who felt his steel on the James and the Chickahominy and the Paymelpanneyls and the After bagging this game, Mr. Alling hunted

Tan out into the siough, presenting to the hunter a chance to cover them with a raking fire. He fired first sitting, and then, as the ducks arose, he emptied the second barrel. "Why," said Sam., "it fairly rained ducks, and I'd 'ave given $5 to have had some fellow there to see the shot. The dog was half an hour in bringing them in, and when he got them all I found forty-one ducks and a mud-hen. The latter was in a flook beyond the ducks, out in the water."

After bagging this game, Mr. Alling hunted After bagging this game, Mr. Alling hunted the rest of the flock, and drew bead on them again, bringing down ten ducks at a single shot. His work at this one lock was, therefore, summed up in a total of sixty birds-fifty-nine ducks and a mud-hen-ii two single and one double shots. Mr. Alling has hunted for thirty-five years, and his veracity is beyond question. The shot is truly a remarkable one, and challenges an an equal. We are happy to record the fact
